

ECON 2010: PRINCIPLES OF MICROECONOMICS

11:00AM, T & Th | Course 10363, Section 090

12:30PM, T & Th | Course 10391, Section 091

McLeod Hall Auditorium, Room 1020

Instructor:

Ken Elzinga, Monroe Hall, Rm 216

Office Phone: 434.924.6752

Email: elzinga@virginia.edu

Office Hours: T/Th, 2:30-5:00pm

Head TA:

Anderson Frailey, Monroe Hall, Rm 132

Office Phone: 434.924.7883

Email: af3wt@virginia.edu

Office Hours: Mondays @2:00-4:30PM

A Personal Note from Mr. Elzinga:

Welcome to Econ 201. For efficiency reasons, I'm going to use the old, shorter number. This is a long syllabus, but the length is not because I'm wordy. It's because large classes have a lot to describe.

A famous economist, John Maynard Keynes, once wrote: "The theory of economics does not furnish a body of settled conclusions immediately applicable to policy. It is a method rather than a doctrine, an apparatus of the mind, a technique of thinking which helps its possessor to draw correct conclusions." My objective is to teach this "technique" or way of thinking. If I succeed, you will be able to understand a news article about economics better than the journalist who wrote the story. If you receive an A in Econ 201, you should be able to run the economy of a small country. These claims are void in states where prohibited by law.

While lawyer jokes are a dime a dozen, economist jokes are rare. Here is the shortest economist joke I know: an economist and a friend are walking down a street and the friend (pointing) says, "I'd like to own a car like that." The economist replies: "No you wouldn't." That's the whole joke. Economists find this funny (LOL funny). By semester's end, you should know enough economics to understand this joke - even if you don't find it funny. If you understand why this is funny even before taking Econ 201, send me an email, OK?

While you are only beginning the study of economics, there is nothing I have learned that you cannot. The main difference between you and me is that I've been in school longer. You may learn more in Econ 201 than you can imagine, maybe more than you want, and you can maximize your utility doing so. For those who have asked others about this course, everything you have heard about it may be true.

Prerequisites:

There is no prerequisite for Econ 201. However, students may benefit from two semesters of Sesame Street, Friends, Survivor, The Office, Money Heist, or their course equivalent.

Helpful Links:

How to do well in Econ 201, a sample final, etc.:

<http://kenelzinga.com/teaching>

Frequently asked questions about an Econ major:

<http://economics.virginia.edu/FAQ-undergraduate>

Please sign the class guest book:

<https://forms.gle/aVxHgsWcrAYEy2nE6>

Required Materials:

- Microeconomics, 11th edition, by David Colander (McGraw-Hill)
- Connect software (McGraw-Hill)
- iClicker Student app subscription (see additional information below)

Microeconomics 11e + Connect:

The Colander e-textbook and its accompanying Connect software are inputs for acquiring human capital in Econ 201. They will help you understand the economic way of thinking. Though he divides his time between Middlebury College and Sanibel Island, treat Mr. Colander as a second professor in the course.

Connect is just as important as the e-textbook. Connect gives you access to the e-textbook and provides supplemental resources such as video tutorials and practice problems. Your TA may use Connect for quizzes or assignments. To sign up for your personal Connect account, go to your Discussion Section Collab site and click on the MH Campus Tool on the left side menu. This will ensure that your Connect account is linked to your TA.

The UVA Bookstore and McGraw-Hill work together to provide Inclusive Access, a discounted rate on the e-textbook and Connect software. The price ($85.69) is added to your student account when you register for this course. If you would like a loose-leaf copy of the textbook in addition to the e-textbook, you may purchase one through the UVA bookstore for $33.33. If you buy a used textbook you will not have Connect access.

iClicker:

For in-class questions, we will use the iClicker mobile app. You do not need to buy a physical clicker but you do need to:

1. Purchase an iClicker subscription using your UVA computing ID.
2. Download the iClicker Student app from App Store (Apple) or Play Store (Android).

Create your account at: <https://student.iclicker.com/#/account/create>. Be sure to enter your UVA computing ID in the Student ID field to ensure that you receive credit for your answers. Buying the 6-month subscription ($15.99) will be sufficient for this course, though if you plan on taking 2020 (Principles of Macroeconomics) in the spring semester you can save a few bucks by buying a one-year subscription ($24.99). If you already have an active subscription from another course, there is no need to buy another one.

There will be ample opportunity to earn the full 15 clicker points during the semester and there is no way to make up missed clicker questions. Mr. Frailey has prepared a list of Frequently Asked Questions along with instructions for registering your clicker, found on the course Collab site. Please review these materials soon in order to avoid pitfalls later in the semester.

Attendance:

There will be two 55-minute classes each week in the McLeod Hall. There also will be weekly discussion sections led by Teaching Assistants. You must be registered in both the lecture and a discussion section. Lecture attendance is at your discretion. I do have one request: if you attend, please be on time. The cost you impose upon me and the class by entering late is what economists call a negative externality. Your parents might call it bad manners. Also, because of fire regulations, there can be no sitting in the aisles. Please turn off all electric razors, boom boxes, cell phones and other audio equipment during the lectures. Pacemakers, Fitbits and electronic tracking devices (if you are out on parole) may be left on.

Lectures:

Because of the class size, lectures will start five minutes late (at 11:05 or 12:35), and last about 55 minutes (until 12:00 or 1:30). Lectures do not parrot the text, but are correlated to the assigned reading.

Econ Minutes:

In addition to being responsible for material in the lectures and the textbook, from time to time you will encounter material through “Econ Minutes” on a particular topic, such as the economics of sports, the economics of happiness, and the economics of health care. The Econ Minutes have been pre-recorded and I will announce in class when a particular Econ Minute is available. Econ 201 students will have one week to view the Econ Minute through Panopto and then it will be removed.

Discussion Sections:

Every student must be enrolled in a discussion section led by a particular Teaching Assistant. The discussion section is the place to raise questions about the Colander textbook and the lectures. You also may raise questions during your TA’s office hours. Your TA will grade your tests. The Head TA, Anderson Frailey, manages the discussion sections and other enrollment matters.

Adding, Dropping & Withdrawing:

The last day to add a discussion section or to change a grade option is Tuesday, September 7. The last day to drop the lecture or a discussion section is Wednesday, September 8. The last day to withdraw is Tuesday, October 26. For withdrawing, a grade of W will be given in all cases.

Course Grade:

The first and second exam are worth 80 points each, and the final examination 200. Clicker questions are worth 15 points if you get 15-20 correct, 10 points for 10-14 correct, and 0 points for below 10 correct. In addition, your TA will allot up to 25 points based on your performance and attendance in discussion section. This adds to a total of 400 points.

Dutch Knockout: Your grade for the course will be based on one of two grading methods: 1) a 400 point method based on the entire semester’s work, or 2) a 200 point method based on the final exam only. As an act of generosity characteristic of the Dutch, you will be given the higher of the two grades. Thus it is possible to do poorly on the first two exams (or even skip them altogether), get zero TA points, never get a single clicker question right during the lectures, and still redeem yourself (in a secular sense) by doing well on the final. This is not a strategy your academic dean or faculty advisor recommends.

The course grades will be set according to a scale (which may not conform to your high school scale). The scale is determined the day after the final exam. Thus, exams will not have letter grades assigned to them. If you have a question about the grading of an exam, you may submit a written appeal to your TA, using the Grade Appeal Form available on Collab. If you are not satisfied, bring the signed form to the Head TA. If you are still unsatisfied, see me. All of this must be completed within three weeks of the exam date. For general grading questions (not specific exam appeals), contact me or the Head TA by Tuesday, December 7.

Exams:

Two midterm exams will be given during your scheduled lecture period on Tuesday, September 28, and Tuesday, November 2.

Make-Up Exam:

There will be a comprehensive make-up exam on Tuesday, November 16, 6:30–8:00pm for students who missed the first or second exam and have an acceptable excuse. Acceptable excuses are: death in the family, University-sponsored event that takes you out of town, a serious illness, or accepting a Nobel Prize from the King of Sweden on the day of the midterm. The Nobel Prize can be in any field, not just Economics. To request permission to take the make-up exam please submit a Make-Up Exam Form, found at the link below, to the Head TA who will respond to you promptly. The deadline for requesting to take the make-up exam is Tuesday, November 9. Make-Up Exam Form: <https://forms.gle/whZc7cdKgyLwcJgF6>

Final Exam:

Because of class size, excuses from the final exam are rare and seldom approved by the Dean's Office. The two-hour final examination is on Monday, December 13, from 7:00-9:00pm. For many of you, the Econ 201 final will be the capstone academic event of your time at the University.

Special Accommodations for Tests or Lectures:

Student Disability Access Center (SDAC) accommodations must be arranged through SDAC and communicated to me, the Head TA, and your TA no later than seven days before an exam. Accommodations can be granted only to students who have SDAC approval.

Copyright Material:

Students are prohibited from selling notes or any video material from this course to any person, other institution, or commercial firm (or being paid to take notes) without the express, written permission of Mr. Elzinga. Copyright, 2021, Kenneth G. Elzinga, as to this syllabus and all lectures.

"Recordings, course materials, and lecture notes may not be exchanged or distributed for commercial purposes, for compensation, or for any other purpose other than study by students enrolled in the class. Public distribution of such materials may constitute copyright infringement in violation of federal or state law, or University policy. Violation of this policy may subject a student to disciplinary action under the University's Standards of Conduct."

The Honor System:

Because of the Honor System at Mr. Jefferson's University, I assume Econ 201 students will be truthful in dealing with their TA, the Head TA, and me and will not cheat on their exams. In the unlikely event that you witness an incident of cheating, you are to contact an Honor Advisor. The Honor System is one of the University's most valuable assets, making it distinct from most other colleges and universities. I admire and support the principle of student self-governance upon which the Honor System rests.

Blogs:

If you want to follow an economics blog, the four most-visited are listed here:

Marginal Revolution

<http://marginalrevolution.com/>

Greg Mankiw's Blog

<http://gregmankiw.blogspot.com/>

The Grumpy Economist

<https://johnhcochrane.blogspot.com/>

Overcoming Bias

<http://www.overcomingbias.com/>

Econ 201 Course Outline

All reading assignments are from the Colander text (11e).

UNIT	LECTURES	ASSIGNED READING
1 - The Central Economic Problems and the Approach of Economics	1-2	• Chapters 1, 2 (review Appendix) & 3
2 - Market Allocation, Non-Market Allocation, and Elasticity	3-8	• Chapters 4, 5, 6 & 7
3 - The Theory of Demand: Consumer Behavior	9-10	• Chapter 19

FIRST EXAM: Tuesday, September 28

4 - The Theory of Supply: Firm Behavior	11-12	• Chapters 11-12
5 - When the Market "Works": Competitive Pricing	13-15	• Chapter 13
6 - When the Market "Fails": Monopoly Pricing	16-17	• Chapter 14

SECOND EXAM: Tuesday, November 2

7 - Applied Economics: Antitrust, Brewing	18-19	• Chapters 15-16
8 - When the Market "Fails": Externalities	20	• Chapter 8
9 - Income Distribution: Who Gets What?	21-23	• Chapters 17-18
10 - Getting Rich the Econ Way	24-25	• No Reading Assignment

Thinking of majoring in Economics? Chapters 21-23 in the Colander textbook may help you decide (but they are not assigned reading for the course).

MAKE-UP EXAM: Tuesday, November 16, 6:30 – 8:00pm

Only for those with prior Head TA approval

FINAL EXAM: Monday, December 13, 7:00 – 9:00pm